Patrick signs bathroom bill

BOSTON. Certain people with medical conditions who need to use the bathroom immediately will soon be allowed to use employee-only restroom facilities in Massachusetts if no public bathroom is available.

Gov. Deval Patrick's signature on Wednesday made Massachusetts the 13th state to pass a so-called restroom access bill. According to the bill's supporters, inflammatory bowel diseases such as Crohn's disease or ulcerative colitis make bathroom access a more immediate concern. Only patients with a doctor's note would be allowed access to employee-only facilities. SHNS

▶ Needham Town Hall was filled with Raisman supporters Thursday, who watched live streamed coverage of their hometown hero competing. Raisman, center, tasted gold in the team competition but came in fourth Thursday.

It's a rally for Aly

◗ Raisman's family is sure she'll shake off the loss ◗ Fans and friends ecstatic before, during and after performance ◗ More chances to come

There were cheers and tears Thursday as hundreds packed Needham Town Hall to watch a local golden child shine.

Olympic gymnast Aly Raisman competed in the individual all-around competition at the 2012 Olympic Games in London Thursday, and ultimately lost the bronze medal after a tiebreaker.

The 18-year-old has rocketed to stardom due to her earlier gold-medal performance with the U.S. women's team, so it's no surprise that her hometown is showing her lots of love, despite Thursday's loss.

"I was really happy for her because she made it all the way to the Olympics. It was her goal to do that. But I felt sort of bad for her when she messed up but I knew she would do better on the floor exercises. That seems to be her best event," said 9-year-old Brianna Gorman after Thursday's watch party.

Like most of the children Thursday, Gorman was decked out in patriotic colors and giddy with excitement. Kids did cartwheels, inspired by their home-grown hero, and grown men clapped and cheered along with chants of "Let's go, Aly, let's go."

"She's got a very calm, coolness to her, and it shows in everything that she does."

ALY RAISMAN'S GRANDFATHER MARTY RAISMAN

Silence filled the crowd as Raisman performed and when she fumbled, you felt it.

After the competition ended with U.S. gymnast Gabby Douglas in first place and Raisman in fourth, Aly's grandparents Sue Faber and Marty Raisman were surrounded by reporters eager for their reation to their granddaughter's performance.

"She's a champion no matter what place she comes in, as far as I'm concerned," said her grandfather Marty Raisman. "She did a great job. A couple little small mishaps ... no matter what the score is, she's still a champion."

When asked how he felt about her not getting a medal, Marty said, "I would like it to have not happened, but these things happen," and added that he was "very, very nervous" while watching her compete. "She's a pro, she'll put it behind her."

Outside, as the crowd dispersed, Faber chatted with friends, beaming with pride despite her granddaughter's loss.

"I was excited for her, and I felt bad when she had a few mishaps," Faber said. "She recovered nicely and she did an excellent floor routine, and that's all you can ask anybody to do."

"She's a nice kid. She really is. Now she's a woman, though. I realized when I saw her on television talking to her teammates, and saying to Gabby [Douglas], 'You can do it. You can do it.' I realized that she was a leader," Faber said.

When asked how she thinks the young athlete will adapt to her newly found fame once she returns home, Faber said: "I think she'll be the same person, which is down to Earth. She's always kept gymnastics separate from the rest of her life, and I think she'll be able to go back into society with her friends and she'll be the same Aly that she's always been."

Raisman couldn't make it two gold medals in three days Thursday, but did manage to earn a split of third place with Russia's Alyia Mustafina. Due to a tiebreaker, however, Mustafina would go on to earn the bronze medal.

Judge grants probation for child-molesting rabbi

Brookline rabbi pleads guilty, avoids jail time ◗ Victims and district attorney disappointed with sentence ◗ Rabbi, prosecutors had previous plea agreement for probation ◗ Charged with molestation in other states

A day after pleading guilty to sexually assaulting young boys, a rabbi that taught in Brookline walked out of Suffolk Superior Court and will not see any jail time.

Rabbi Stanley Levitt, 66, pleaded guilty Wednesday to four counts of indecent assault and battery on a child. Judge Geraldine Hines sentenced him on Thursday to 10 years of probation with certain conditions.

"He got a slap on the wrist. He should have served jail time," said Natalie Brecher, the 76-year-old mother of one of Levitt's victims.

Brecher was in court for Thursday's sentencing hearing during which her son Michael spoke.

Quoted

"He failed the children, and he failed the faith."
JUDGE GERALDINE HINES

"Mr. Levitt's abuse wreaked havoc in my life," he said. "I've suffered from severe depression, wanting … to die. I feel dead inside."

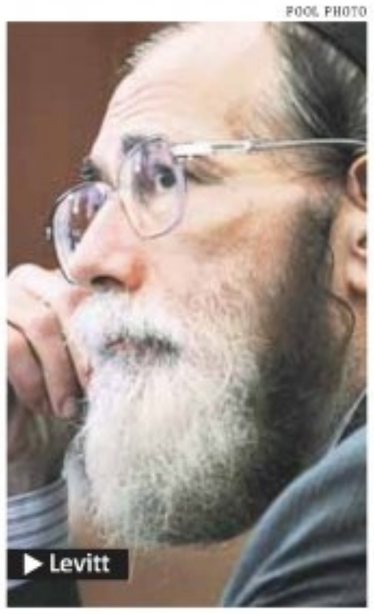
Prosecutors requested that Levitt serve 2½ years in jail. However, as his defense attorney Scott Curtis argued, a deal was in place months ago that Levitt would only get probation.

Prosecutors and Levitt agreed to a plea agreement in December, which would have allowed him to get only probation. However, Levitt changed his mind and moved forward to seek a jury trial. That trial was set to begin with jury selection Wednesday when Levitt changed his mind again.

"We don't punish people for insisting their right for a fair trial," Hines said. "I feel obligated to honor that [earlier agreement]. I don't have to, but I haven't been given any reason not to."

Levitt worked at the Maimonides School in Brookline as an instructor. During his time there, he abused three sixth grade boys in the 1970s.

POOL PHOTO



▶ Levitt

Levitt studied in Brooklyn, N.Y. After working in Brookline he went to work in other cities, in Maine, Connecticut and in Philadelphia where he was also accused of assaulting three boys.

Levitt was acquitted in one of those cases, in another the victim could not see the case through and the charges were dropped and he pleaded no contest in the third case and was ordered to five years of probation.

Conditions of probation

In addition to probation and GPS monitoring, he will have to abide by certain conditions:

- Complete a sex offender treatment program
- Have no contact with any child under 17 without supervision
- Do not reside with any child under 17
- Engage in no employment or volunteer work that would put him in contact with children under 17

Frustrated Annan quits as UN envoy

GENEVA. Former U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan is quitting as international peace envoy for Syria, frustrated by "finger-pointing" at the U.N., while the armed rebellion against President Bashar al-Assad becomes increasingly bloody.

As battles raged on Thursday in Syria's second city, Aleppo, between rebel fighters and government forces, U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon announced that Annan would go at the end of the month.

"Kofi Annan deserves our profound admiration for the selfless way in which he has put his formidable skills and prestige to this most difficult and potentially thankless of assignments," Ban said. REUTERS

Near miss at Washington airport

WASHINGTON. U.S. officials said on Thursday they are investigating "miscommunication" this week that led three US Airways planes — two outbound and one inbound — to veer unacceptably close to each other over Washington's Reagan National Airport.

The Federal Aviation Administration said bad weather south of the nation's capital on Tuesday forced controllers to divert planes to a different runway.

"During the switchover of operations, miscommunication ... led to a loss of the required separation between two regional jets departing from Runway 1 and a regional jet inbound for Runway 19," the FAA said in a statement. REUTERS

Chick-fil-A has record day from gay marriage blowup

ROBYN BECK/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Thousands of Americans turned out Wednesday to feast on fried chicken in a politically-charged show of support for a family-owned fast-food chain.

Adding a bit of controversy to the menu doesn't seem to have hurt Chick-fil-A.

The chain restaurant had a "record-setting day" on Wednesday, according to a spokesman, as customers descended on its roughly 1,600 locations across the United States in support of its president's contentious stance against gay marriage.

The one-day blowout came after Republican ex-presidential candidates Mike Huckabee and Rick Santorum called for supporters to send a message about "traditional values" by eating at the chain, known for its chicken sandwiches and waffle fries and for being closed on Sundays.

"While we don't release exact sales numbers, we can confirm reports that it was a record-setting day."
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT OF MARKETING STEVE ROBINSON

Lately, the chain has been making news because of comments from company president Dan Cathy that he supports "the biblical definition of the family unit" and that backers of gay marriage were "arrogant."

He added, "Chick-fil-A Appreciation Day was not a company promotion."

Gay marriage supporters have pushed for a boycott and are seeking to block new Chick-fil-A outlets from opening. The mayors of Chicago and Boston have spoken out against the company, and same-sex couples around the country plan a kiss-in at Chick-fil-A restaurants on Friday. REUTERS

The 'Total Recall' star talks cracking the bad guy mind-set and dealing with endless questions about her age

Kate Beckinsale: The villain as a hero

Don't get in this woman's path, if you know what's good for you.

Kate Beckinsale has quite a ferocious presence in the new update on "Total Recall." She plays a government operative on the hunt for Colin Farrell's rogue agent with memory issues, after she's worked undercover as his doting wife. The trick to tapping into such a baddie, she reveals, is to play it like a hero. But something Beckinsale is less adept at, she admits, is dealing with the ever-present questions about age and beauty that pop up on a press tour.

Though you play the villain, you've mentioned that your character thinks she's the hero.

The thing is, if you're playing somebody who is mentally ill, you can't play mentally ill. If you play somebody as a villain, you end up twirling your mustache and that kind of thing. I do think people who do things that other people consider bad are feeling like they're doing the right thing. And I think she's also quite distracted by her own sort of emotional situation, which is that she's so highly trained and highly talented, and yet she's given this detail that's actually quite degrading, where you're that highly trained and you're basically pretending to be somebody's wife. There's something kind of humiliating and horrible about that being your job.

I assume it would be maddening, having all that training to be, basically, a housewife.

Yeah, and then go and have sex with this person — who is for all intents and purposes a factory worker — and make his dinner for him. It would drive me mad, and I'm not even a highly trained operative. I would hate that.

I've noticed when doing press for your movies, you get a lot of the same questions, particularly about your age.

Were you there when [a reporter] asked me if I fantasize about playing Maggie Smith's parts? That was quite a stunning one. Is she not 87? I came back to my room and said, "I wonder if Colin was asked does he fantasize about playing Mickey Rooney's parts?" Does that happen? Probably not. I must say, I do find that that's an obsession that seems to be quite rampant in the press, and it doesn't come up in my actual life so much. And then I get quite shocked when I come to press junkets and people are obsessed with it. It's almost like, "How are you still going around with that wooden leg and the colostomy bag and the false teeth? How's it going?" It just seems so completely mad to me.

It's the other side of being an actress, really — taking these questions over and over, handling them with grace and humor. How do you do that?

I don't know if I think I'm necessarily very good at it, because I feel like I'm far too honest most of the time. I keep hearing about these sort of seminars that other actors have done to figure out how to deal with it, and I was never offered it, told about it — it's too f—ing late now, anyway. I do think that my instinct is to be open and treat it as if I am genuinely having a conversation, which I don't know is necessarily the right move. I think that's a bit naive.

KATE BECKINSALE

Candid Kate

Fun with adult toys

Kate Beckinsale isn't afraid of getting randy with her anecdotes, as she did when she visited Conan O'Brien's talk show earlier this year and spoke about stashing a fake penis in her mother's luggage.

▶ "My makeup artist had given me for Easter — I'm not sure why — this enormous rubber penis," Beckinsale recounted. "I kept stashing it in my trailer at different spots so my daughter wouldn't find it. So I thought, 'I'm just going to put it in my mother's hand luggage when she goes to the airport. Maybe that will cheer her up.' My mother is very English and also 64. When I told my makeup artist, she was horrified and said, 'You have to call her in the car.' So ... I had to call and say, 'I'm terribly sorry, Mom. Look in your bag.' She responded, 'Oh my god, Kate ... What am I going to do with it?'"

Beckinsale says she's shying away from anecdotes about sex toys.

▶ "I've learned my lesson a bit on that one," she says. "You can't keep doing that, otherwise people think you have a fetish."

'Total Recall'

Director: Len Wiseman
Cast: Colin Farrell, Jessica Biel, Kate Beckinsale
Rating: PG-13
Grade: ❶❷❸❹❺

▶ Colin Farrell is no Ahhhnold.

The original "Total Recall" was simultaneously beaten up on release for its level of violence and praised for its complex story. The same can't be said for the remake. The body count is still high, but the story plays more like a high-tech version of "The Fugitive" than a sci-fi mind bender. It's a pretty good chase movie, but the sci-fi falls flat.

Farrell is much more of an everyman than his predecessor, Arnold Schwarzenegger. The original treated women like window dressing, but here Kate Beckinsale and Jessica Biel are given meaty, action-packed parts. Beckinsale uses all she tricks she learned on the "Underworld" movies, kicking butt in every scene she's in. And while Biel won't need to wake up early on Academy Award day, she gives an energetic performance.

Overall, it seems the movie values violence and action above all — more than story, humor or even the legendary three-breasted hooker who is glimpsed for all of two seconds. This movie clearly appreciates bullets over breasts. RICHARD CROUSE

Aaron Sorkin defends 'The Newsroom'

During the Television Critics Association press tour, the writer talks controversy over the flawed characters on his cable news drama

MELISSA MOSELEY

▶ Jeff Daniels stars in "The Newsroom," airing Sundays at 10 p.m. on HBO.

Aaron Sorkin hears your criticism.

The creator of "The Newsroom" acknowledges the commentary that the female characters on his behind-the-scenes drama about a 24/7 cable news channel are written as smart, yet functionally incompetent. He just doesn't have the same opinion.

"I 100 percent disagree with it," Sorkin told reporters gathered at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif., on Wednesday. "I think that the female characters on the show are, first of all, every bit the equals of the men. We plainly see [women] being good at their job beginning with the first episode. The men and the women screw up in roughly the exact same way."

Star Jeff Daniels, who plays news anchor Will McAvoy, stood by the creative decisions made by his boss. "We come on with these big warts and flaws," Daniels says of Sorkin's characters, "and I love that about his writing. Emily [Mortimer's] character is established as smart, and then she keeps screwing up. That's one of the things that Will loves about her."

One thing some critics don't particularly like about Will is his habit of pontificating. Though grand monologues have always been a hallmark of Sorkin's work (from "The West Wing" to "The Social Network"), the writer has been accused of using Will as a mouthpiece for his own strong opinions.

"I want to make a clear distinction between me and the characters that are in the show," Sorkin told reporters, adding that he tends to write about subjects "I actually don't know very much about."

"I get pumped full of information by people who do know what they are talking about so that I can find the point of friction and write an episode," he said, but admitted, "Political opinions that I have are at the level of sophistication of someone who has a BFA in Musical Theater."

Season 2 preparations

An average of 7 million viewers per episode seem to enjoy "The Newsroom" — and that's something even critics have a hard time arguing against. Sorkin announced the series's second season will air next June. He's hiring "paid consultants from television, print and online media" to boost the series' authenticity.

'Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days'

Director: David Bowers
Cast: Zachary Gordon, Steve Zahn
Rating: PG
Grade: ●●○○○

In the latest adaptation of Jeff Kinney's popular books, "Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days" focuses on lazy Greg Heffley's aimless summer vacation. Most notably, he tells his parents that he got a job to cover up sneaking into a country club. Harmless but hardly inventive, the film may improve upon the franchise's previous outings but without a solid narrative, "Wimpy Kid" seems as restless as a hyperactive adolescent on summer break.

'Immortal' beloved

The work of Michael Jackson and Cirque du Soleil seem destined to be together. Both produce the same simultaneous reactions of "Wow! That's amazing" and "That's kinda weird." Although "Michael Jackson: The Immortal World Tour by Cirque du Soleil" only came together after the King of Pop died, Cirque spokesperson Laura Silverman reveals, the two parties were big fans of one another.

"Michael Jackson was always a big fan of Cirque," she says. "He visited the headquarters in 2004 in Montreal and he'd seen almost all of the 10 shows that had visited California."

Jackson has so many iconic moments of his own that adding one's own twist could be a dangerous proposition. How did Cirque do it?

"There are definitely moments that are classic that you can't mess with," says Silverman. "We have the 'Thriller' dance, which obviously is in 'Thriller.' And in 'Smooth Criminal' you are going to see that iconic lean move from the music video."

With Cirque, it just so happens that there's also a lot of aerial stunts.

How about moonwalking?

"Yes of course, there's moonwalking," says Silverman.

Rain O.A.R. shine

On their new album, friends that formed a band in high school come together to reaffirm their commitment to one another through the best of times and the worst of times ◗ Singer on holding up to his own lyrics

▶ "You're in a band for 15 years, you have kids and all these brothers in the band," says Roberge, fourth from left.

If listeners perceive a previously unheard gravitas beneath the bouncy grooves and anthemic choruses of the latest O.A.R. album, that's because while working on "King," the band went through dark times. Singer and guitarist Marc Roberge says that his wife's diagnosis with cancer and her subsequent successful treatment gave new meaning to soul-searching verses he had already been working on.

Not only did the hardship serve as a lyrical litmus test of sorts, but the experience also made him realize how important the band he started with his friends in high school really is to him.

"I went into the album with every intention of writing about somebody who has come to this realization, you know, somebody who has realized that you can't live your life constantly out there searching for something — at some point you've got to just look right around you at everything that's within arm's reach," he says. "In the middle of the record-making process, when everything started to happen on the home front, it really solidified it — but at the same time, it made me realize how full of it I was. It's really good to talk about that — it's kind of cool to put out positive quotes — but until you really have to, it's all just words."

The music on "King" certainly does put out the positive vibes, and there is a palpable sting of sincerity as Roberge sings lines like, "I know you've got my back," against a reggae rhythm in "Fire," and "everything we got is everything we need" in "Heaven."

"You have this dream when you're 15 that you want to be on the road," says Roberge. "Then life goes on, and you're in a band for 15 years, you have kids and all these brothers in the band. It becomes very difficult to balance the world of travel and home. You get tested every single tour, and you really have to love it. … And it turned out, when it got hard, everyone still wanted to get the music out there."

Souls: Still Bouncing after all these years

CHRISSY PIPER

▶ Bouncing Souls play House of Blues on Saturday.

It's been 23 years since the Bouncing Souls burst onto the scene of the punk haven that is New Brunswick, N.J., the home of Rutgers University. According to Pete Steinkopf, guitarist for the band, little has changed in the city that has recently churned out punk giants like Streetlight Manifesto and the Gaslight Anthem.

"I think it's so cool that New Brunswick has consistently had a basement show scene that's going on since we lived there in the late '80s, early '90s," Steinkopf says. "There's always a generation of kids having shows in the basement, and there's always cool music and cool bands coming out of there."

Steinkopf says the band sought to reconnect with these roots to make "an old school-inspired Bouncing Souls record" when they created their newest LP, "Comet."

Steinkopf says he looks forward to at least another 23 years of the Bouncing Souls.

"We're gonna keep playing as long as we're having fun and enjoying making music together," he says. "We'll play until we can't walk anymore."

THE WORD

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

Culkin: In trouble, or just really pale?

Macaulay Culkin hasn't been doing much these days, but we just assumed that was because he's Macaulay Culkin. The National Enquirer, however, claims that the actor has spent the past few years in a heroin hangover that's only getting worse.

"He's been hooked for a year and a half, and his drug of choice is either heroin or oxycodone," a source tells the paper (which, yes, we read — you're welcome). "Mac is surrounding himself with junkies and lowlifes. It's a real tragedy."

Despite interventions, a friend tells the paper he's not listening, hence the photos of him looking gaunt and disheveled: "His closest friends fear that he'll overdose or his heart will explode. If he doesn't get help and enter rehab now, he could be dead in six months."

Culkin's team, however, says there's no truth to the story. "The report ... is not only categorically without merit, but it is also impossibly and ridiculously fictitious," his publicist tells E! Online.

If Culkin is struggling with addiction, we sincerely hope he gets the professional help he needs. If he isn't, well, we still sincerely hope he gets the professional help he needs — starting with a shave and ending with a trip above ground. Seriously kid, we have Girl Scout cookie ice cream up here now — join us!

▶ Culkin, right, and Seth Green have both looked better.

The circus must go on

No matter what happens between Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson over the next couple of months, they'll be promoting the final "Twilight" installment together this fall.

"While it is studio policy not to comment on the personal lives of actors, Summit is moving full steam ahead and looking forward to this November's opening of 'The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn – Part 2,'" Summit's president of worldwide marketing, Nancy Kirkpatrick, tells E! Online. "We are confident that the film delivers amazing entertainment for our passionate fans and general audiences alike."

For the first time, we're also confident "Twilight" will deliver amazing entertainment — can we suggest popcorn at the press conference?

Ryan Lochte probably not going to call

Ike Lochte was pretty candid when discussing her son, Olympian Ryan Lochte, during an interview with the "Today" show. "He goes out on one-night stands," Ike said of her son. "He's not able to give fully to a relationship because he's always on the go. It just wouldn't be fair to the girl. He doesn't have the time."

Ryan, between this and the tacky diamond grill you insist on wearing, you have a future in gossip columns if swimming doesn't work out. Keep us posted.

Talking points

We totally owe you one, universe

Anyone looking for news of Selena Gomez and Justin Bieber taking their relationship to the next level will have to wait — and wait a while, if Gomez has anything to say about it. "Marriage and all that other stuff I think will happen once I feel accomplished in every other aspect of my life," the former Disney star tells Teen Vogue. "I don't take anything in my personal life too seriously."

Miley Cyrus home break-in a hoax

Police swarmed the Hollywood Hills home of Miley Cyrus and Liam Hemsworth this week after a bogus 911 call claimed someone was trying to break in and gunshots had been fired, according to TMZ. Luckily the couple is out of town, or there could've been a much different outcome when officers arrived, guns drawn. Authorities are looking into who made the false call.

Only the best for the Beckhams

Victoria Beckham's oldest son, Brooklyn, may only be 13 years old, but the former Spice Girl is already keen on playing matchmaker for him — and she has her eyes on Taylor Swift. Serving as guest editor for the latest issue of Glamour, Beckham describes Swift as "so gorgeous and wholesome that I want my son to date her someday" — this despite a nine-year age difference between the two. Beckham also reveals that she and husband David having a fifth child isn't completely out of the question: "I'd never say never about another baby," she writes. "It's a juggling act — a career, family, a husband who's busy. But I'd never say never."

▶ Brooklyn Beckham's mom is looking out for him.

Correction

Metro incorrectly stated in an article on sweeteners that monk fruit extract, the zero-calorie sweetening agent found in Nectresse Sweetener, is a sugar alcohol. Monk fruit extract is in fact a natural sweetening ingredient that comes from the monk fruit. The sugar alcohol used in Nectresse is erythritol, a natural sugar alcohol that is naturally fermented from sugars and found in many vegetables and fruits.

'The power of the populace'

'Coriolanus' director talks about the timelessness of Shakespeare and how his own experience at the University of Jordan influenced him

ANDREW BRILLIANT

▶ Did Shakespeare's stage directions really call for the character to hoist a machine gun into the air? Probably not, but it's adaptation, people!

Incompetent leaders, tension between the government and the people, revolt: These sound like premises from recent news headlines, but they're actually themes in a play written 400 years ago.

"Every time we rehearse a scene we come upon something that was literally pulled right out of the contemporary political discourse," says Steven Maler, director of this summer's annual Shakespeare on the Common production, "Coriolanus."

A year and a half ago, Maler was teaching a theater workshop at the University of Jordan when the Arab Spring — a wave of protests across the Middle East, from Egypt to Syria to Tunisia — exploded.

"I felt surrounded by that energy of people redefining their lives," says Maler, who is responsible for picking each summer's show. "The power of the populace in this play really resonated very powerfully with me. We see it in our own country through the Occupy Movement, this idea of revolt against the establishment."

How could Shakespeare possibly be in tune with today's conflict?

"It's shocking," admits Maler. "The cliche about Shakespeare is that his plays 'feel like they were written yesterday.'"

"Coriolanus" is about a military general who leads Rome's citizens on a mutiny during a food shortage. After their victory, the citizens vote him as their leader. But it turns out Coriolanus is a disastrous political ruler.

Perhaps modern-day politicians could benefit from seeing this show.

Free the people

In its 17th year, Shakespeare on the Common is still free. "Everybody, regardless of ability to afford the ever-increasing ticket prices of the theater, can go out and appreciate this," says Maler. That sounds like something from Shakespeare's time!

Chick-fil-A: Let's give 'em something to bawk about

The reason for boycotting the idiotically named Chick-fil-A goes beyond their president's private beliefs. They are actively spreading intolerance within our society. Do you want your children being given religious CD-ROMs in their happy meals, as Chick-fil-A did in 2005? (Their religion, of course, not necessarily yours.) Should you support a company that gives millions to hate-peddling traditional "family" groups trying to legalize discrimination?

No one in their right mind who is non-Christian, non-white, female or gay — or anyone who CARES about anybody who belongs to any of those groups — should give a penny to this hateful organization. Maybe we can't legally keep them out of our towns, but we can certainly hurt them economically!

RICHARD FEINBERG, BOSTON

Please do your homework. Your coverage of the Chick-Fil-A protest/support leaves out the fact that Dan Cathy donates millions of dollars to the American Family Association, an organization listed as a hate group by the Southern Poverty Law Center, and one that has called for LGBT people to be criminalized and imprisoned in America, and one that spent $25,000 lobbying Congress in favor of the Ugandan legislation quaintly nicknamed "Kill the Gays" bill.

Protesting Chick-fil-A is not about Dan Cathy's right to free speech. Lots of people say much worse things. The protest is against him using his wealth to support the literal criminalization, imprisonment and execution of LGBT people in the world. It's a despicable position, and you do the world a great disservice by failing to report it accurately.

ADAM LEVEILLE, SOMERVILLE, MASS.

I wish that Ms. Quinn and other mayors and protestors would stop this nonsense of trying to shut down the Chick-fil-A food establishment. This is unconstitutional. Everyone has the right to their own beliefs and opinions. You cannot run someone out of the city just because they don't agree with your views. This country was founded on religious beliefs and freedoms, and no one is telling you to frequent this place.

MARYANN RUGGIERO, VIA E-MAIL

I'm confused by what the head of Chick-fil-A wants our country to adopt as our definition of marriage and by just how far he desires us to go in our quest for biblical correctness. Some of the stories in the Bible describe men with hundreds of wives. Is that the "biblical definition of marriage" he's referring to? Everyone needs to realize that there is an awful lot of crazy stuff in the Bible — people living for hundreds of years, Jonah living in the belly of a whale, Lot's wife being turned into a pillar of salt, etc. But the most important thing everyone needs to realize is that the laws of our country are not now, and never have been, based on Bible stories.

Horoscope

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Instead of being given to you directly, a great opportunity might come your way through an intermediary. Be ready and prepared to expand upon what it offers.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Your ideas and those of your mate's might not be too far apart; so instead of acting on your opinions alone, attempt to merge the two. It should prove to be the better way to go.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you look out only for your own interests, you'll be putting limitations on what you can achieve. When you include others in your thoughts, greater rewards for everybody can be realized.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. The secret to success is to be a doer instead of merely a contemplator. If you fearlessly face your adversaries, you'll find them to be paper dragons.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Several important interrelated situations can be satisfactorily finalized if you handle them in an orderly fashion instead of doing things in fits and starts.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Utilize your inquisitive faculties to more readily acquire valuable knowledge. What previously confused you will now become crystal clear.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Being unrealistically concerned about your financial affairs could cause you to make some bad decisions. You'll work things out more constructively if you stay focused.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. A close friend of yours who has a good track record is likely to be the purveyor of some valuable information. Have him or her repeat it over and over again until you fully understand it.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Even though you are anxious to resume control over an endeavor, it behooves you not to make any changes if things are running smoothly. Leave well enough alone.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. You need to be open-minded and flexible, just in case some unexpected changes need to be made in order to right a foundering situation.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Making the most out of each new development as it occurs should help stabilize your position. Even if your strategy could never be a permanent fix, all it has to do is serve your present needs.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. If you've been helping others advance an important endeavor, stay the course regardless of a change in leadership. Chances are, all will turn out well.

You can't go more than two steps in London without hearing someone talking about the Olympics. A week into the games, the city is officially immersed in Olympic culture. It's in the air, it's underground, it's everywhere.

Unfortunately, not everyone can be in London during this historic time, but Metro has been canvassing the streets, interviewing athletes and coaches, meeting fans and snapping photos of international Olympic mania, so you can feel like you're in the center of the action.

Here's a roundup of the best quotes and photos, with plenty of juice about Olympic Village, rivalries between teams and behind-the-scenes moments.

– Cassandra Garrison is covering the Olympics live from London. Follow her at @CassieAtMetro.

Kelly-Ann Baptiste, track and field athlete for Trinidad and Tobago, on whether she socializes with the competition during the Games:*
"I don't really speak to a lot of them. I say 'Hi.' I'm cordial. But to say that they're my best friends — they're not — and that's just being honest.

But I think we have a lot of respect, and we respect each other enough to have conversations."

Erica Wu, U.S. table tennis player, on being only 16 and an Olympian:*
"I think it doesn't matter how old you are. I think how it's amazing to be here. Everyone in the village respects everyone else because we are all athletes."

Kerri Walsh, U.S. beach volleyball player, on relationships forming between athletes:*
"The Olympic Village is very electric. The first couple of days it's kinda like the first days of high school. Everyone is a little awkward, checking each other out. When you put boys and girls together, you're going to have some couplings."

Tim Morehouse, U.S. fencer, on nominating his fellow fencer Mariel Zagunis as the flag bearer in the opening ceremony:*
"She is a two-time Olympic champion, the greatest fencer in our sport's history. I just felt like this was the time for her to shine.

She was in a dead-tie with another athlete. It was a man."

Angelo Taylor, U.S. track & field athlete, on whether Olympians are partying:*
"I'm trying to go for an unprecedented third Olympic gold in the 400-meter hurdle. I'm very focused, so no partying for me until after the job is done."

Tony Azevedo, U.S. water polo player, on rooms and the food:*
"Usually, you get a roommate. For some reason, maybe because I'm the captain, they gave me a single. The food is phenomenal. You walk into the dining hall and there's like 10 little areas: India, Halal, Africa. For me, being a foodie, I love it. There's sushi in there. I'm the happiest kid on Earth. You have to watch what you eat, though, you can't eat too much."
... and on whether athletes worry about sleeping on an unfamiliar mattress:
"That's actually a big problem with our team. We have ... big guys on our team. I'm actually the smallest guy at 6-foot-1, 200 pounds."

Three events this weekend:

- Michael Phelps has just two chances for medals left in his storied Olympic career. On Friday he swims in the 100-meter backstroke finals, where he was the top qualifier. Then on Saturday he swims in his last race, taking the butterfly leg of the 4x100 medley relay.
- The knockout stages in women's soccer get under way with the U.S. taking on New Zealand early Friday morning.
- The marquee event of the track competition comes on just the second day. Heats for the men's 100-meter sprint begin on Saturday, with the final at 4:50 p.m. EST on Sunday. Usain Bolt and countryman Yohan Blake are the favorites, with Americans Justin Gatlin and Tyson Gay contenders.

A cryin' shame?

Local fans believe Aly Raisman was screwed out of a bronze medal Thursday Needham's hero bumped to fourth on tie-break technicality

Was Needham's Aly Raisman screwed over on Thursday in the women's All-Around after tying Russia's Aliya Mustafina for third place but not coming up with a bronze medal?

Yes and no.

Yes, in the fact that Mustafina posted a low score of 13.633 on the beam. Raisman, who was no great shakes on the beam either, still managed to earn a 14.2. If those scores were used, Raisman would have had the edge.

But due to new International Olympic Committee rules, the lowest apparatus score is taken out of the final totals in the case of a tie-breaker. With that, Mustafina finished .567 ahead of Raisman.

"[Aly] performed well, but I think she lost it on the beam," U.S. head coach Mihai Brestyan said. "I don't know what happened. Perhaps nerves played a part. I tried to encourage her, as usually she's very calm.

"I have never seen her do such a bad routine on the beam," said Brestyan to Yahoo! Sports. "When it is for the team she is fine, when it is for herself, something is wrong."

News in brief

Marblehead's Harrison overcomes abuse

Kayla Harrison earned the first gold medal in U.S. Olympic judo history Thursday with a thrilling victory over Britain's Gemma Gibson.

Harrison, an Ohio native, has strong Massachusetts ties as she currently lives in Marblehead and trains in Wakefield under Methuen's Jimmy Pedro (who was once a judo Olympian himself).

Pedro won two Olympic bronze medals while active.

Harrison's story is one of inspiration as she overcame being sexually abused for three years by her first judo coach. During those years, Harrison briefly considered suicide due to the abuse.

Douglas captures All-Around gold

While Aly Raisman was disappointed in not grabbing a medal in Thursday's All-Around gymnastics competition, she did get to smile as teammate Gabby Douglas captured the gold.

With the win, Douglas became the first African-American to capture all-around gold. Douglas led from beginning to end, finishing with 62.232 points. Russia's Victoria Komova had 61.973 to earn the silver.

Could Derek Lowe make a return to Boston?

There is little resemblance between this year's group of Red Sox and the championship squad of 2004. There is a chance that could possibly change in the coming days. Former Sox hurler Derek Lowe expressed strong interest in coming back to Boston to close out his career after he was designated for assignment by Cleveland this week.

There is mutual interest on the part of the Red Sox as well.

"Derek obviously had a great run here," Boston GM Ben Cherington told WEEI yesterday. "We'll take a look at it. But we still need to focus on the guys here. We have great respect for Derek and what he did. We'll take a look at it. If it makes sense to pursue, we'll do so. That will be on the agenda today." METRO/MB
